The National Border Patrol Council endorses John Boozman for Senate

“We need a partner like John Boozman”

TUCSON, AZ – The National Border Patrol Council (NBPC) is pleased to endorse U.S. Senator John Boozman in his bid for re-election to the United States Senate.

NBPC President Brandon Judd issued the following statement:

“Senator John Boozman has consistently advocated for policies that protect our borders. Alongside President Trump, Senator Boozman not only fought to build the wall, but he helped provide the critical border security tools and resources needed to keep Americans safe.

“We need strong partners like Senator Boozman in the U.S. Senate to shut down the drugs, crime, and human trafficking that flow over our borders and into our communities each day. That’s why the NBPC fully supports Senator Boozman and his re-election campaign.”

Senator Boozman issued the following statement upon receiving the NBPC endorsement:

“I am honored to receive the endorsement from the National Border Patrol Council and their recognition of my work in the United States Senate to secure our borders. We must continue to push for sound policies that strengthen our border, while providing the necessary resources to the brave men and women of border patrol. Like President Trump, I am committed to making our border safe and secure for future generations.”

In addition to today’s announcement, Senator Boozman has also received endorsements from President Trump, Sen. Tom Cotton, R-Ark., and Sarah Huckabee Sanders, former White House press secretary and 2022 Republican gubernatorial candidate.
